When the gaming market picked up, our client—a major game developer—found all their existing resources focused on development. To sustain their rapid growth in a technology driven, constantly evolving industry, they sought a partner with proven testing knowledge and the expertise to reliably develop and manage a flexible, integrated, end-to-end turnkey process.

Over the last few years, Experis IT has delivered key contributions to game playability, accessing and recruiting the right resources from the best universities, delivering a proven methodology and, all along, maintaining the highest standards of accreditation of ever more complex games.
